

CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR

Judge James Gibson, of Kansas City, Announces Himself in the Race.

This morning a BAZOO representative was shown a letter from an ex-journalist, which authorizes the statement that Judge James Gibson, ex-Mayor of Kansas City, has fully decided to be a democratic candidate for the gubernatorial nomination in 1892. The letter further asserts that not only is the Jackson county democracy a unit in support of Judge Gibson's gubernatorial aspirations, but that he will also receive the solid support of democrats in the western part of Missouri.

Judge Gibson is a native of Cooper county, is a graduate of the Kemper Family School at Booneville, and besides having been city attorney and mayor of Kansas City, now holds a circuit judgeship. He is still a young man and has the reputation of being one of the finest lawyers and jurists in the west.

The announcement, which first appears in the BAZOO, is authoritative and will be an interesting bit of news to democrats throughout the state.

COLONEL TUTTLE'S LETTER.

DRESDEN, Mo., MAY 31, 1891.

Hon. E. H. Richardson, Secretary Ex-Confederate Association, Sedalia, Mo.

MY DEAR SIR: Your favor bearing date the 29th inst. is received. It gives me great pleasure to accept your invitation.

I will be with you on the 13th and will be glad if I can speak a few words to further the interests of your noble cause.

Very respectfully yours,
W. F. TUTTLE.

STOLE A WATCH.

Pat Kelley Stands a Good Show for a Trip Over the Road.

Last evening Officers Scalley and Murphy arrested a young fellow named Pat Kelley. He was intoxicated at the time and was fined $10 in the police court this morning and sent below.

There is still a more serious charge against Kelley, however, and one that may cause him to take a trip over the road.

Last Friday Kelley left Sedalia and went to Sweeney, where he worked the next day on Elliott & Proctor's rock crusher. On Sunday he and several other laborers went to a neighboring wine garden and drank pretty freely. On their way back they stopped in a wayside cabin and laid down to take a nap. Dennis Murphy was one of the party and he carried a valuable silver watch. This caught Kelley's eye, he slipped it out of Murphy's pocket, and skipped to Sedalia. Reaching here he pawned the watch at "Dutch Henry's" for $4.00, and then sold the pawn ticket to Constable Lewis Lee, of Beaman, who redeemed the watch.

Yesterday the authorities were notified of the theft and the arrest was made as stated.

Constable Lee and Dennis Murphy will arrive in Sedalia this evening and Kelley will have to answer to the charge of watch stealing.

PROBATE COURT.

Probate Court is in session to-day, Judge Hoy presiding.

Letters of administration were granted S. P. Aldredge, on the estate of his brother, the late John F. Aldredge.

Amandy, the daughter, and Alice Fleming and Lucy LaRue, the grand children, are the beneficiaries of the will.

THE ACTION.

The action of the postmaster of El Paso in refusing to allow the El Paso Times to be transmitted through the mail simply because it contained as news an Associated Press dispatch giving a synopsis of the opinion of the Supreme Court of Louisiana compelling the Secretary of State to at the next election a constitutional amendment passed by the last general assembly extending the charter of the Louisiana State Lottery twenty-five years, is deserving of the severest condemnation and censure, not only because of the injustice of such arbitrary proceedings, but upon grounds of public policy. The business manager of the Times very properly had this postmaster, who bears the historic name of Smith, arrested for unlawfully detaining the mail matter, and he was bound over to appear before a commissioner for trial, but the punishment whatever it will be, even if ever meted out after many months of delay, will not fit the crime. Nothing short of absolute and immediate official decapitation, with whatever other punishment the law provides, would be proper for such officious intermeddling with the mails. If the United States mail is to be subjected to such scrutiny and exclusion by the postmaster at El Paso, the postmasters at the various other cities, towns, villages, hamlets and crossroads in the state and throughout the United States have the same right, power and authority, and are of course at liberty to do just as the postmaster at El Paso has done. If the postmaster can stop the transmission of a newspaper because it has in the decision of a court in regard to the Louisiana lottery, he can also stop it because it mentions the name of the lottery in it, and if he can do this he can stop the Post, because it incidentally mentions the name of the Louisiana Lottery company in criticizing his official conduct. If he can do this, however, he can override the strongest bulwark of the liberties of the people and violate one of the plainest provisions in the constitution of the United States, thereby completely throttling the press.

Upon grounds of public policy the United States government should not tolerate such tampering with the mail. It throws open the doors to fraud and, if permitted, will tend to make the service inefficient and unreliable. Why not detain a letter suspected of containing a lottery advertisement, and why not open it to ascertain if the detention is legal? If its contents are legal why then of course it might be permitted to continue on its journey.

The great wrong done newspaper publishers, however, is to allow a postmaster to authoritatively detain mail matter which in his opinion is illegal. He ought not to be permitted to do this. If the publisher had committed any wrong he can be held responsible and be made to suffer the penalty; but a postmaster may detain an entire edition of a newspaper, entailing a heavy loss upon the publisher and yet when the matter comes to a final trial the court may decide that the papers are mailable. The damage has then been done the publisher, and there seems to be no adequate remedy for him. Suppose the politics of a newspaper are objectionable to the postmasters generally, and throughout the state they choose to hold a paper because in their opinion it is not mailable, it would thus put it within the power of the postal department to stop the circulation of a newspaper and bankrupt it, leaving the publisher with a lot of suits against postmasters as assets. Such a state of affairs leaves newspaper publishers without adequate remedy, and to allow such arbitrary conduct on the part of officious postmasters is contrary to the institutions of this government; and a violation of the legal maxim that each wrong has its adequate remedy.—Houston (Tex.) Post May 16.

GOING TO THE PEN.

This morning Sheriff Callaway, of Henry county, arrived in Sedalia with a young negro named Finis Dunning, who goes to the pen for two years for attempted highway robbery.

Two weeks ago Sheriff Callaway, who has run down and captured more criminals than any other man in Henry county, caught Dunning in Kansas City, and returned him for trial.

JOE MUNDAY

Talks to a Crowd at the Criminal Court Room—His Sayings and Sentiments.

Every seat was taken in the large and magnificent court room at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon by a congregation of men who had assembled to hear the evangelist, Joe Munday. The audience was largely composed of young and middle-aged men, with a liberal sprinkling of gray-beards.

But one minister was present, so far as noticed, and that was the Rev. Farris, of the Methodist church, South. He occupied a chair inside the railing but took no part in the exercises.

Joe Munday is apparently forty years old, tall and stoutly built, and wore a ministerial suit of black broadcloth.

His introductory was that he had spoken in court houses in nineteen different states, but that the Pettis county court house was the most splendid he had ever seen.

He stated that he was not an ecclesiastical tramp, that he had been a preacher for twelve years in a certain denomination, which he did not name, but was now preparing himself to enter the ministry of the M. E. Church, South.

After the manner of Sam Jones he supplemented his introduction by saying that he was going to talk plainly and not mince matters. If any persons present were afraid they could not stand the pressure he wanted them to rack out at once, for, if they left while he was speaking, he would make them feel as though they were the meanest men on earth.

"No two men in town can lick me," said he: "the mayor of a town in Texas tried to lick me once, but I wore him out."

"Jesus, lover of my soul" was sung, led by the evangelist, who has a deep, rich, ringing voice, both in singing and preaching.

After another song—"There is a fountain filled with blood"—and prayer by Munday, he read nineteen verses from Mark, 5th chapter, and proceeded with a two hours sermon.

Aside from his stories, anecdotes and evangelistic vagaries, the discourse was just such a one as may be heard in any orthodox pulpit in Sedalia.

The following are samples of Mr. Munday's more catchy utterances:

"If you don't think you can stand what I am going to say, get out of here."

"If you can't stand the pain truth I propose to tell, I want you to rack out."

"A young man who hasn't got brains enough to grease a gimlet, will go to the university, read a few books and then express his opinion. What do I care for his opinion?"

"There are men in Sedalia who would murder Jesus Christ in order to sell a keg of beer."

"I am on to some of you church members and other fellows in Sedalia."

"Some of you old regulars will go to hell, boots, socks and all, before you will say amen to any good work."

"As long as I have got God on my side, I don't care how much cold water you throw on my work."

"I will say amen to anything that will save a man."

"Drummers are guilty in many instances of violating the marriage vow—some of them live in Sedalia."

"The merchant who advertises from January to January that he is selling goods below cost, is lying. No man in the world can sell goods below cost all the year round."

"The man who will jump a church collection is as mean as the devil wants him to be."

"A great deal is being said about the Kansas City Sunday Sun. I think a man's meanness ought to be shown up. I was once accused of being a correspondent of the Kansas City Sunday Sun."

"The man who will play a one cent ante on a ten cent limit, will steal. I see poker players right in this room."

"When I was a whisky drinker and down in the gutter, I tried twice to commit suicide. One time I took a revolver, cocked it, walked to a mirror in my room, placed the muzzle of the weapon to my head, but my nerve failed me. At another time I bought enough morphine to kill a dozen men, but backed out."

At the conclusion of the address, Mr. Munday repeated his declaration that he was no ecclesiastical tramp, but stated that he wished to raise money to pay his expenses and to buy a gospel tent, which would cost $1,600.

All who would pay him a dollar for his lecture would hold up their hands. Two or three persons responded. Then he dropped to 50 cents, and a half dozen hands were raised. He then fell to 25 cents, after which hats were passed around. The evangelist stated that he had in his possession an offer to take the management of a theatrical company at a salary of $100 a week; also that he had the manuscript of a play in his possession, for which he had a standing offer of $1,000, but he preferred to serve the Lord.

The evangelist has been in Sedalia a week. His wife and little boy are sick—the latter dangerously. His expenses during that time have amounted to $35. The collection taken up yielded about $12. He said he could walk out of town, if necessary.

AN OLD GROOM.

Conductor Knowlton's train on the Pacific yesterday brought to Sedalia, John Wilson—plain John who is a Scotchman from the east, en route to Marshall, Mo., to secure a Missouri bride.

Now, John ain't no spring chicken, being old enough to "pass in his checks"—having reached the mature age of seventy and its quite probable that the bride is not of very tender age, for although her name was not learned, the information was gleaned that she was the editress of a temperance paper at Marshall.

Marrying an editor is a very delightful pastime, if the bride aspires to live on puffs, wind pudding and spasmodic love in broken doses, but this marrying an editress must be gorgeous and a sort of a one continual, never ending decoration day. Yum, yum, yum.

It was a tight fit for John to reach his waiting bride in time to wed last night, and he wanted to leave the train at Tipton and walk to Marshall, but Conductor Knowlton, the good old soul, prevailed on the groom elect to keep his seat and he would have him change to the Lexington Branch at Sedalia and to the Chicago and Alton road at Higginsville, thereby reaching Marshall at 10:10 last night when the wedding could take place, provided a license had been previously secured.

Managing a bride in an ordinary way and of the usual make up of the genus woman, is a matter that requires more or less diplomatic skill, but when it comes to arranging terms with an editress bride, fully imbued with the spirit of independence and freedom of the press that swells the bosom of the average American female who writes editorials for a temperance paper, and scratches a match as a man does, we are in doubt as to the result and wonder if she will insist on the old man, who is in his dotage, getting up in the morning, building fires, milking the cow and doing such other menial service as she is likely to impose on him.

We hope the old man did not reach Marshall in time to marry, for we regret to see our sex, even at the brink of the grave, hustled around and jostled about by a female editress and told that he's got no sense and his wife presumes to tote all the brains necessary for the entire family and the hired girl.

"THE MORAL YOUNG MAN."

Another Forty Minute Talk that Set Old Money Bags to Thinking.

Not an average audience greeted Rev. B. F. Boller Sunday night.

Did you ever notice that a little rain would keep the old man and many grown children away from church, while the old lady and one or two of the girls would go if it did drizzle a little.

On the other hand it would take nothing less than a cyclone and a waterspout combined to deter the old man and grown boys from going to a circus or a ward meeting.

Reader, did you ever notice it? Well, Sunday night the weather was a little threatening and the head of the family said: "It looks like rain—reckon I won't attend church to-night."

And he didn't, but the good old wife and mother and some of the girls and a sprinkling of the boys got there at the risk of their lives.

The old man would not risk his life so long as another Sunday night was coming.

The "moral young man" was not in it to any great extent. We are talking about the Rev. Boller's sermon now.

He started out about a young man that was moral whose history is told in St. Mark X.

The young man told Jesus Christ that he did nothing naughty as follows:

Do not commit adultery.
Do not kill.
Do not steal.
Do not bear false witness.
Do not defraud.
Honor my father and mother.

The young man in Sedalia who does all the above was not at the house of God Sunday night.

He was at the house of his best girl.

Again the "moral young man" was told that these were all very good but not enough yet.

"What else," he cried, in accents wild?

You are wealthy, you have riches, you have bank stock, fair ground stock, electric railroad stock, Georgetown pike road stock, Democrat stock and 1,000 herds on 1,000 hills.

He was a wealthy young man. He had just "oodles" of money and he was hoarding more every day.

Of course, dear reader, this did not come within three miles of hitting any Sedalia young man.

Hence, he "wasn't in it."

The moral of it was this, the young man who was acceptable—a model of propriety, could not get in on the ground floor if he worshipped his money and not his Maker, no matter how moral he was.

He must divide and give to the cause of Christ.

The Bible, Rev. Boller and the BAZOO fully agree in this.

Again the parson quoted [that scripture which says "a rich man can't enter heaven any more than can a camel go through the eye of a needle."

Well that lets all editors and reporters in, for none of them are bowed over with wealth.

The speaker then dealt a powerful blow to the young man who was a prodigal and would not pay his just debts.

They were bad medicine. "Old money bags" got the worse dose of any. His soul was so little that he worshipped his money and not his Master. His mind was so contracted that he could not comprehend what good square christianity tasted like, hence he would be lost.

He could not go where poor newspaper editors and reporters are seated round smoking ten cent cigars and discussing the last interview with Senator Ingalls.

The sermon was good pulpit literature. Applications very appropriate and subject matter excellent.

Next Sunday night the reverend gentleman will tell of the "Man who wins."

The answer to this will depend largely upon the game played.

MRS. WELCH'S DEATH.

Yesterday evening there arrived from Springfield, Mo., the remains of Mrs. Maggie Welch, wife of Conductor Jack Welch, accompanied by the bereaved husband and a party of friends.

A few years ago Maggie Newman was a sweet-faced, gentle, intelligent, attractive little school girl, in Booneville, Mo. When she had reached woman's estate she found a wooer and afterwards a husband in Conductor Jack Welch, then of the M., K. & T. railway. They made their home in Sedalia for awhile, and then removed to Springfield, Mo., Mr. Welch becoming a passenger conductor on the Frisco road.

Mrs. Welch was taken sick and died at her home last Saturday. To-day, in the home of her childhood her funeral took place and she was buried in Walnut Grove cemetery, beside her parents.

The green grass in that graveyard rests upon the bosom of no sweeter woman than was Maggie Newman Welch.

25 YEARS A PRIEST.

On Wednesday the 27th inst. Rev. Theo. Kussman celebrated the 25th anniversary of his consecration to the priesthood. At 8:30 a. m. the school was filled by his beloved parishioners, who the Rev. gentleman and his guests were called over, and after a few songs by the children several beautiful presents were handed to him, with appropriate speeches of congratulation, by each of the societies, after which the congregation marched in a body to the church where solemn high mass was celebrated.

In the evening after services the Juvenile Brass Band led by Prof. Krause gave him a beautiful serenade after which all present were invited into the school, where the Rev. gentleman was presented with a well filled purse by his parishioners and then refreshments were served by the ladies of the congregation.

The following is a list of the visitors:

Rev. Jos. F. M. Diel, Wardville, Cole Co.; Rev. F. H. Stranbinger, Moberly, Mo.; Rev. Joseph Schroeder, Holy Trinity, St. Louis; Rev. Francis Knepper Tipton; Rev. John Conrad, O. S. B., Clear Creek; Rev. J. Francis O'Neill, Marshall; Very Rev. Father Cuhls, Kansas City, Kansas; Rev. Father Gruender, Loose Creek; Rev. Father Dickman, O. S. B., Sedalia; Prof. Goetze, Moberly.—Boonville Star.

FOR ABANDONING HIS CHILD.

Last Monday a Mrs. Horace Dusenberry, of this city, appeared before the county court and complained that some time ago George Moffett left his five year old child in her care. For a while he paid a certain sum of money for its maintenance and then utterly abandoned it. Mrs. Dusenberry appealed to the court to take the girl in charge or allow her sufficient to support it. This morning Moffett, who has been working in a Sedalia flouring mill, was arrested by Deputy Constable Barnett, on a warrant sworn out by the prosecuting attorney. A preliminary hearing of the case will be had in Judge Blair's court, June 10, Moffett giving $100 bond for his appearance.

Meantime, the county court has allowed Mrs. Dusenberry enough to keep the abandoned child until that time.

HIS SENTENCE LIGHTENED.
The Governor yesterday granted a commutation to Winfield Allen, who was convicted of robbery in Linn county in June, 1886, and sentence to the penitentiary for twenty-five years. The commutation reduces the sentence to twelve years with the benefit of the three-quarter rule. It recently developed that the prisoner's real name is Scott Holt and his father, a respectable citizen of Indiana, will take his son home. The prisoner was one of the four men who robbed the Brookfield Bank. All the others are either dead or out of prison. He was the youngest of the four and has been a model prisoner.
